HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Holidays are marred for some by flooding

By GEORGEANN MCGEE

Water was slowly receding Tuesday from the streets and yards in sections of Sunny Shores Mobile Home Park, located next to a spring-fed lake (Sun 'n Fun) on Interstate 270 and old Highway 66 (West Chain of Rocks Road). Water has surrounded some mobile homes here since Christmas Eve.

Mark and Tina Sanchez, park residents, were forced to leave their mobile home after heavy rains began last week. They were afraid the family car might stall plowing through the park's water-logged streets, should their ill child need medical assistance.

"The flood started Thursday and the lake started to back up," explained Sanchez, who lives in the private park, which offers facilities to about 120 mobile home owners. He had just returned from visiting his home and found water lapping at the top of his 12-inch boots in the streets.

"I'm pretty nervous about it. It isn't a very pleasant thing to see water in your yard," commented another resident, who wished not to be identified. Others, within close proximity of the lake, saw fish swimming in their yards.

Although mobile homes have the advantage of sitting well above ground level, Sanchez said, it appeared some low-mounted air conditioners were sitting in wet pools. Sharon Yust, who owns the park with her husband Lawrence, said there was no water in any of the homes. One resident estimated about 10 homes were completely surrounded by water and another 40 were affected by the flood.

For some, the timing of the flooding was particularly inopportune. One family with small children was sharing its quarters with discarded Christmas boxes and wrappings and quickly ripening garbage. "We're surrounded by water...I can't get to the mailbox...My garbage can floated off to who knows where. I've had garbage in my house, since Dec. 24. The shame of it is my mother wanted to visit."

According to the her and other residents, flooding also occurred on a smaller scale during last July's heavy rains. "When it happened in the summer it was kind of fun, wading in the warm water, but its getting cold (now)."

The cold weather also is a concern to the Yusts, who are trying to move the water as fast as possible before freezing begins. Mrs. Yust sees the flooding situation as an engineering problem, formed when I-270 was constructed.

The mobile home park lies in a low area partially created when dirt was taken to build the four-lane interstate. The resulting "borrow pit" left a lake, to which engineers channeled a pipe to drain fields across I-270. Later, the mobile home park was developed. Mrs. Yust said the water flows at a tremendous rate of speed from that pipe.

According to Bob Douglas, president of the Chouteau, Nameoki and Venice Drainage Levy District, it appears the park's lone pump can drain the mobile home area, but problems result when waters from across the road are added to that. The district is well aware of the problem and has met on several occasions.

Citizens to meet Jan. 3 on school closing issue

By BILL WINTER

What is a proper lifetime for a school or other cooperative enterprise? That subject has become the center of much discussion in regard to North High, Grigsby Junior High, Prather Junior High and possibly four grade schools.

"North Concerned Parents," who oppose the potential closing of North High, have scheduled a public meeting for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 3, at the Granite City Township Building, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue. A spokesman for the group which obtained the meeting place said Tuesday the meeting is intended for "all Granite City school district taxpayers."

"The Board of Education on Jan. 4 will set the date for a public hearing on proposed school consolidations and program cutbacks. The cuts are intended to reduce overall costs in the $29 million yearly school budget; whatever changes are approved will go into effect in June 1983.

Some taxpayers considering the possible loss of North as an educational center say the prospect is bittersweet. They realize it is expensive to operate a facility of that size—its capacity is 1,860 students—but they have become mightily attached to the school. And they think it has not yet outlived its usefulness.

In the former hit Broadway play,

"Brigadoon," that fantasy community survived for thousands of years but was in existence only one day in each century.

The Kennedy presidency lasted 1,000 days before being brought to a tragic halt.

And let it not be forgot that "for one brief, shining hour"—a poetic reference to a lifetime reign—there was King Arthur's mythical kingdom, at a place called Camelot."

Human lives may be painfully brief or joyously long, but schools have always been thought of as having a lifespan of many decades. Now, due to inadequate funds, that may no longer be the case in the Granite City district.

Granite City High School North, as inspiring as Camelot to many of the families served by it, is one of the chief elements in a list of cost-cutting proposals outlined by administrators this month.

The public will be given a chance to react in the first half of January, and final board decisions are planned in the last half of January in an effort to trim up to $7 million from 1983-84 expenses.

Serving the geographic area east of Maryville Road and north of Pontoon Road, North High has been in operation since the start of the 1973-74 school year.

Many people believe that 1982-83, its

Loan assures steel firm to open here

By GARY SCHNIEDER

Approval of a low interest loan from the Illinois Industrial Development Authority crossed the final hurdle and assured that Shasta Illinois Inc., a steel bar processing firm, will locate within a month in the former Laclede Steel Co., 67,000-square-foot building on Washington Avenue near Race Street in Madison.

The company initially will employ about 10 persons, but eventually hopes to provide jobs for about 75 persons. All employees will be from the Quad-City area, according to Alan Richardson, executive director of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, who worked with the company in assuring funding.

Word was received yesterday by State Sen. Sam Vadala (D-Edwardsville) that the Illinois Industrial Development Authority (IIDA) approved $125,000 in low-interest loans to help buy equipment for the new company, which is not related to Shasta Bottling Co.

After reading the letter from Lee Roy Brandon, general manager of IIDA, announcing the loan approval, Sen. Vadala told the Press-Record, "A lot of work went into this project. It should be a good thing for the entire area and should help the unemployment situation."

Brandon told the Press-Record that the IIDA loans carry an interest rate

Glik's to close store in Madison

A landmark in Madison, the Glik's Department Store located in Madison since 1901 and opened by the late Morris Glik and his wife Mrs. Elsie Glik, now retired, will close its doors by the end of January, according to Joseph Glik, son of the founders and chief executive officer of Glik's Department Stores.

The business was moved to its present location at Third Street and Madison Avenue in 1926.

The store, which offered clothing for men, women, children and infants as well as household items, yard good material and other accessories, was patronized by many Quad-City

Tips for surviving celebration

What is New Year's Eve without partying? And what's a holiday party without traditional drinks like egg nog, wassail, hot toddies and hot buttered rum?

Probably a little safer, according to these thoughts from the Illinois Optometric Association (IOA), which isn't advocating a return to Prohibition, but rather an awareness of how alcohol affects one's vision, especially while driving.

We also include some "sobering" words from a University of Illinois researcher, who warns that the "cure" for that New Year's Day hangover has not yet been invented. The result might help lead to a happier holiday for all.

According to Dr. Paul Randolph, an optometrist and President of the IOA, a professional organization of 1,000 optometrists, alcohol plays serious games with one's vision. It affects the ability to judge distance, can cause double vision, and reduces peripheral vision, night vision and the ability to distinguish colors.

Because alcohol reduces the supply of oxygen in the bloodstream (as does smoking), it also disturbs the parts of the eye which send the image from the back of the eye to the brain.

A driver under the influence of even small amounts of alcohol (as little as two glasses of beer) will have increased difficulty seeing at night and will be slow to respond to a hazardous situation such as a pedestrian rushing into the street. Studies show a blood-alcohol concentration of 0.12 percent reduces the distance a pedestrian can be seen by a drinking driver about 20 percent. This is enough to make the visibility distance much less than the stopping distance.

According to the National Safety Council, the dangers of mixing alcohol with driving are very real. Alcohol is responsible for more than 50 percent of the traffic fatalities in the U.S., and that percentage increases during the holiday season.

Drugs, too, can interfere with the visual skills needed for driving by affecting muscular coordination, visual acuity, contrast, color and distance judgment. Among those drugs are barbiturates, narcotics, tranquilizers, patent medicines used to assist or resist sleep, antihistamines, or cold tablets. Even aspirin, when extensively used, can adversely affect vision.

A pill to sober you up and another to cure your hangover? Sounds like the perfect panacea for holiday partygoers. Don't believe the claims, though. Such products have not yet been proven effective, cautions alcoholism researcher Dr. Boris Tabakoff of the University of Illinois at Chicago.

"Alcohol is a drug that acts on many systems in the brain. It would be very difficult to counteract its effects with a single remedy," Tabakoff said, adding that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration now is investigating claims of so-called hangover and sobriety products.

PARAMEDIC PROGRAM BEGINS. The long-awaited paramedic program of the Granite City ambulance service has been initiated and an Advanced Life Support Vehicle, manned by at least one paramedic, is now on 24-hour call. Here, a mock accident is simulated by paramedic Dave Bell, right, and "victim" Tim Connolly, a Granite City firefighter. Connolly is electronically attached to a portable electrocardiograph (EKG) which is used to monitor and transmit information about the patient's heart functions to St. Elizabeth Medical Center or other nearby hospitals via a radio-telephone. Connolly also is fitted with inflatable anti-shock trousers which are used to force blood from the lower extremities to the vital organs. Mike Kelly, center, an EMT who has taken his paramedic exam, assists Bell. Paramedics are capable of administering the same initial treatment to cardiac patients as they would receive upon arrival to the emergency room. (Press-Record Photo by Patrick Foley)

Free Madison city stickers

The free license stickers will be available starting Jan. 3. After Jan. 31, they will cost $5 per sticker and $1 for senior citizens, the mayor explained.

Two plead innocent in burglary attempt

Eldon G. Hubble, 21, of 2415 Cardinal Ave., and Glen A. Hutter, 17, of 2560 Northbridge, pleaded innocent to charges of attempted burglary in appearances at the Granite City court at 4:10 p.m. Monday.

Bonds of $15,000 were set on each man and they were transferred Tuesday to Madison County Jail at Edwardsville.

Hubble and Hutter were arrested at 1:20 a.m. Dec. 24 when their vehicle was stopped by officers at Emert Avenue and Maryville Road, following a report of a possible burglary in progress at the Parkside Confectionary, 3202 Maryville Road.

Police went to the confectionary after learning that someone allegedly was trying to get into the building. It was noted that the side door to the store had been pried open.

Enroute to the scene, officers were advised that a light-colored auto had just returned to the store and picked up a man. A description of the vehicle and its direction of travel were given, and the car in which Hubble and Hutter were occupying was halted.

In the vehicle, officers alleged finding a screwdriver with a broken tip between the two front seats and the pair was taken into custody. Hutter became uncooperative at police headquarters, it was reported.

The vehicle was searched and items of value were inventoried. Inside the car was a grey box containing lock picks and other miscellaneous tools and parts, it was alleged.

BANK DEPOSIT GONE

An employee in the Madison office of Dr. Muhammad Jamil, at 406 Madison Ave., reported last week that a total of $180 in cash and checks had been stolen from her desk. The money had been prepared for deposit at a bank and then left under a desk pad while she placed a patient in the examining room, she told police. The money was gone when she returned.

residents through the years as the store where they could purchase apparel for the entire family.

According to the news release by Glik he said, "It had been hoped that our sales would substantially improve after the opening of the Alpine Village Shopping Center, but they did not. Every effort will be made to create jobs and traffic by the future usage of the building."

A second store was opened in 1954 in the Belmore Shopping Center, 3248 Nameoki Road, and is still in operation.

During the ensuing years other Glik Stores were opened in the Wilshire Shopping Center, East Alton in 1958, Edwardsville in 1959, Godfrey in 1963, Cahokia in 1965, Belleville in 1967 and in Highland in 1973 in the Northtown Shopping Center, also owned by the Glik Development Corp.

Other stores were acquired in 1978 at the Carlisle Plaza, in 1979 in Collinsville, and another store in downtown Belleville in 1980. The purchase of two No No Stores, one in Fairview Heights and the other in East Alton was completed in 1981.

A specialty store selling only updated misses' and juniors' fashions at St. Clair Square in Fairview Heights was opened on Friday, Nov. 26 of this year.

West Port Plaza in St. Louis city will be the site of the next new store, scheduled to open in early February. The store, to be called Glik's LTD., will feature teens' and ladies' fashions and will be similar to the one in St. Clair Square.

Driver faces six charges

Fred R. Walch, 18, of 1726 Cleveland Blvd., was arrested in the 3200 block of Bryan Avenue at 10:20 p.m. Monday in connection with a traffic accident in which the vehicle he allegedly was driving extensively damaged one house and fencing at another.

Walch was charged with resisting arrest, driving without headlights, fleeing and attempting to elude a police officer, not having a valid driver's license, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident with property damage.

The reports state that the vehicle, allegedly operated by Walch, was being pursued by an officer when the driver lost control of the car and hit a chain link fence at the home of Henry Meyers, 2134 Ohio Ave.

The auto then glanced off a telephone pole and finally came to a halt after striking and extensively damaging the east side of the John Schleiff residence at 2130 Ohio Ave.

The driver was taken into custody after allegedly fleeing from the scene on foot. About 10 yards of chain link fencing at the Meyers home was destroyed in the mishap.

FAMILY ARGUMENT LEADS TO ARREST

Richard E. Dixon, 32, of 1239 Nineteenth St., was arrested at 5:50 p.m. Thursday and booked on two counts of battery.

The charges resulted from a family argument at the Dixon home when Dixon allegedly called a relative an obscene name and Clara Dixon, his wife, and Donna James, his sister-in-law, objected.

Dixon pushed Mrs. Dixon to the ground and struck Miss James in the head with his fist, it was alleged. He was released on posting a $100 cash bond.

YARD DAMAGED

Mrs. Joseph Wallace, 3117 Myrtle Ave., reported last week of hearing a loud noise and seeing someone alight from a Jeep and enter a nearby house. The driver then backed the vehicle into the Wallace yard, traveling through the property and causing damage to the ground, before crossing the yards at three neighboring homes, she said.

Program in the U of I College of Medicine, said substances used to help drinkers "sober up" are either impractical or not very effective.

Stimulants such as amphetamines and caffeine will temporarily counteract the effects of alcohol in the brain, he said. "However, when the stimulant wears off and alcohol is still present in the body, you will become intoxicated again," he said. "A person who is legally intoxicated may need 10 hours to rid himself of the alcohol in his body. Caffeine wears off in an hour or two."

"Drinking coffee, dousing your face with cold water or slapping yourself may make you feel sober for awhile. Then, when you get in your car and drive away, the stimulation wears off and you are in trouble," Tabakoff said.

Research has found that fructose, a form of sugar, will speed the body's metabolism of alcohol. This has worked in laboratory experiments with animals, but has not been very effective in humans, Tabakoff said.

Tips

"Fructose does not make you sober in 20 minutes. If it normally takes 10 hours to rid yourself of an intoxicating dose of alcohol, with fructose it might take eight to nine hours, and you need to take a large quantity of fructose, up to a cupful," the researcher explained.

Basically, alcohol causes intoxication by interacting with the brain cell membranes. The membranes are important for communication between cells in the brain. Add alcohol, and the result is a general disorganization of brain function, Tabakoff said.

Hangover is actually a form of alcohol withdrawal. When you drink for several hours, the brain cells begin to adapt to the presence of alcohol. When you stop drinking, it takes several more hours, even a day, for the body to readapt to alcohol's absence.

School closing

its good and bad points, but officials believe many pitfalls were avoided in the North concept.

Discipline, achievement and school spirit have been emphasized.

Key members of the faculty were chosen for the North concept. They would be trend-setters, and Superintendent B. J. Davis staffed the school with some of the most capable persons available to him. North was visualized, not as a stepchild, but as an equal.

Now, the superintendent and other administrators are in the process of shrinking the school system rather than expanding it. Board members hope to end the annual budget imbalance, halt growth of operating debt, and eliminate the practice of borrowing against the second future year's tax income.

If economics force the closing of North, some advantages are being foreseen. For example, a consolidated high school might be able to make good use of student course selections, forming classes in subjects that separated schools might have been unable to provide.

But negatives would far outweigh positives, in the opinion of numerous parents, who are urging the board to keep North open and find cost reductions elsewhere.

In letters to board members, Mrs. Paula Travis, second vice-president of the North Band Parents Association, is suggesting that the two high schools remain in use.

She concedes there is "a genuine need to cut costs" and proposes that all three junior high schools, Prather, Grigsby and Coolidge, be closed after the current school year. She would place the seventh and eighth graders in the elementary schools along with kindergarten through sixth graders.

"I feel this is a viable alternative to

That readaptation process, along with other effects of alcohol such as disruption of sleep, toxic byproducts that spill from the overloaded liver as it metabolizes the alcohol, and the chemicals added to liquor for flavor and color, cause hangover symptoms such as headache and nausea.

"Research brings us ever closer to understanding how alcohol acts upon the body, and this understanding brings us closer to remedies for its effects, including hangover," Tabakoff said.

"Much more important than a cure for hangover or a pill for instant sobriety, though, is the development of an agent to protect individuals from the long-term health damage that occurs every day in millions of 'normal' social drinkers," he added. "Some day we will be able to prevent the damage to intestines, liver, heart and brain that regular alcohol use can cause," he predicted.

the consolidation of our high schools and an orderly, serious consideration. We all wish to see our young people go out into the world ready to assume their places as future leaders. It is our responsibility as parents and educators to provide them with the best possible tools."

Supt. Davis is well aware that merging of schools entails some loss of traditions and effectiveness.

Fewer student leadership opportunities would be available. What he and others are attempting to do this winter is to weigh the various approaches and choose the "least worst" plan.

Many other parents and taxpayers also are making their opinions known. It will be up to the school district to try to assimilate the suggestions and then act to restructure the schools in a way that offers the best possible instructional program within monetary limits.

Officials are evaluating the age, location and condition of all schools, the cost of their upkeep and other factors, such as the impact of consolidation on bus transportation expenditures. At some of the present buildings, most of the students walk to school or obtain rides from family members.

While building operation and maintenance costs are a major concern in the budget balancing effort, school employees account for 87 percent of the budget when their salaries and fringe benefits are considered.

With enrollment and resources both decreasing, it seems inevitable that there not only will be fewer schools in the fall of 1983 but also many fewer personnel.

Officials have said honorable dismissals probably will exceed 100, and there is fear that the number may be much larger than that.

Flooding

move the water away from the homes.

"Mother Nature has dumped a lot of water on us," Mrs. Yust said, comparing the situation at Sunny Shores to the area where the water took a beating from the unusually wet weather.

Regardless of the various reasons behind the flooding, many residents are filled with questions about what precautions might have been taken to head off the current problem. Others are worried that damage may result to their mobile home skirting, submerged in some cases, and the eventual price in car repairs to vehicles traveling on flooded streets.

Primary customers for Shasta Illinois Inc. are expected to be St. Louis area steel companies and machine companies. Shasta Illinois also are being offered to Granite City Steel.

It is hoped that the new company can open in the rented building by Jan. 15. Richardson said the location of Shasta Illinois here should be "a good opportunity for the area and the company itself. Most of all, it will provide some employment opportunities for local people."

He noted that arranging for the new firm to move here required approximately four months of work and concluded, "I am very pleased to have been able to assist in the location of Shasta Illinois Inc. in the area. Shasta was attracted by the steel-related industries here. The operation of the IIDA and Madison County makes (the company) competitive and we have the people resources and the market here. There is a good opportunity, with the company's location in the St. Louis area, for growth," Richardson added.

He noted that Shasta is the second firm attracted here by, among other things, the Chamber's economic development thrust. The first firm which moved to the Quad-City area was Terminal Railroad Association, which moved its headquarters into the former A&P Food Store building on Madison Avenue.

State fund cuts to affect BAC

Belleville Area College faces a $100,000 shortfall in state aid this fiscal year, President Bruce R. Wissore told the Board of Trustees at a late-December meeting in Steelville.

The college will not have to dip into its $1.4 million fund balance to cover the cut, Dr. Wissore said. "A pattern of careful budgeting and frugal spending will enable BAC to weather the shortfall," he said.

"The cut may be the first of two during this year, depending on decisions this spring in Springfield. Our fiscal year ends June 30."

"Before the end of the year, our district may lose up to $200,000," Dr. Wissore told the board. "It's a sobering thought."

"In other states, this has turned out to be a recurring phenomenon. It is something we must face this spring and also for the next budget year."

"We have to be ready to run on an even more efficient basis," he said.

"BAC is just one of many institutions facing state funding cuts."

"We're not criticizing the state. The money really is not there."

His remarks were echoed by Mark Spizzo, director of the state economic development office located at BAC.

Explaining his office's functions to the BAC board, Spizzo said his budget of $55,000 has been cut $8,000. He is employed by the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA).

That cut makes it even more important for Spizzo to focus on encouraging industrial expansion in the Metro East area and drawing new businesses here, he said.

"Word from my bosses is that my top priority is to make deals and make them quick; we need business," Spizzo said.

He reported he is working on two corporate expansions in Belleville and one in Greenville. He also is working with two industries that are considering locating in Metro East, he said.

Spizzo has been working with BAC employees to determine industry needs within the college district.

"We're questioning industries as to where they're going and then we can develop programs to meet these anticipated needs," Spizzo said. The community college is a valuable resource in establishing training programs, he added.

DCCA has been conducting seminars throughout the region, covering such topics as entry into international marketing, media relations, procurement of government construction contracts, prospecting of new businesses and computer applications for the construction industry.

The department is compiling a directory of venture capitalists in an effort to bring these people together with entrepreneurs throughout Illinois, Spizzo said.

In other action, the BAC board approved administrative contracts. Financial Aid and Placement Director Lee Knoebel of Belleville and Data Processing Manager Robert Morris of Mascoutah were rewarded for superior work with three-year contracts.

Administrators who have been with the college for four or more years receive two-year contracts and those with less time receive one-year contracts.

The board congratulated psychology instructor Rita Heber of Freeburg for being recognized in the fourth edition of "Understanding Human Behavior." She served as a reader for the text.

She has been appointed an associate dean in the University Transfer Division, effective in January.

Open new recycling center here

Container Recovery Corp. (CRC), the aluminum recycling subsidiary of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., has announced the opening of new mobile-unit reclamation sites, including one in Granite City. The other is at Ninth and Sidney streets near the Anheuser-Busch brewery and will be open Fridays from 2 to 5 p.m.

"This is the eighth new CRC reclamation center we've opened in the past two months, which is indicative of our desire to increase consumer convenience during the winter months," said Ronald E. Smiley, manager/wholesaler operations for CRC. Last month, CRC opened mobile-unit reclamation centers at seven Kroger store locations in Illinois and Missouri, including one at 3401 Nameoki road, which operates Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

All area CRC recycling centers will be closed Dec. 25, 26 and 31 and Jan. 1, 1983. In addition to the cash incentive of 25 cents per pound for aluminum returned to CRC permanent reclamation sites and 24 cents per pound at select mobile-unit locations, consumers will be able

Wishes for a safe celebration

Please take it easy New Year's Eve. Our very lives and the lives of our children depend on it.

Every year, we write the tragic stories of New Year's Eve "accidents" (an unjustified word in cases where drivers intentionally put themselves in the position of being "accidents looking for a place to happen"). We have written fatal accidents, injury accidents, property damage accidents, fights, shootings, stabbings and other injuries for years after New Year's Eve. This year we would like a rest.

Area residents have received sufficient warnings in the newspapers, on television and elsewhere, warning that drinking and driving don't mix. While we all are tired of reading such warnings, we hope they got their point across.

We wish all Quad-Cityans a safe and happy New Year's Eve and hope everyone will use caution and good sense this year to protect themselves, and others.

Need mediation, not litigation

These interesting thoughts come from the Milwaukee Journal.

The nation's clogged courts desperately need relief. Can't more disputes be resolved outside of formal judicial channels? Efforts to do so got a welcome boost recently from U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger.

In a speech to the Institute of Judicial Administration, Burger wisely pointed to some areas — such as child-custody cases and domestic disputes — in which judges need not be initially involved as a matter of course. The chief justice also suggested that some personal injury and property damage cases could be administratively resolved, as worker compensation cases now are handled.

The point is not to strip citizens of their right to seek redress in the courts. However, the costs of litigation and of court operation argue against cluttering the judicial system with disputes that could be resolved by other means.

Citizens, whose cases sometimes creep through the courts, might obtain relief in speedier and less costly proceedings. The courts would be freed from more urgent tasks in both civil and criminal cases.

Thus, we believe there is a strong case to be made for the citizens' complaint and mediation centers that have emerged around the nation in recent years. This approach has proved especially effective in resolving family, landlord-tenant and small claims disputes. The centers use voluntary procedures, with a neutral third party trying to find a mutually satisfactory solution for the contending claimants.

The "mediation-not-litigation" approach makes sense. It deserves Burger's encouraging words.

Anger over Congressional raises

Quad-Cityans have reason to be angry. It is difficult for us to sympathize with U.S. Representatives who voted to increase their pay by more than $9,000 in 1983, when unemployment is at the highest level since the Great Depression (hovering around 20 percent locally) and government spending already has put an almost unbearable weight around the necks of American taxpayers.

Neither do we buy their story that it is difficult to attract good people into government with low salaries. We can see top-flight people vying for such seats years down the road, including successful attorneys, good state politicians and others.

If such people are willing to seek such seats for an annual salary of $60,662, why raise that salary to $69,762?

The Senate, wisely, decided to forego an increase in its members' pay, deciding instead to allow them to earn more for outside speeches and appearances.

Senators currently earn an average of about $17,626 for such appearances. We can't fault that. At least it is not taxpayer money and groups deciding to pay for the appearance of a U.S. Senator are doing so willingly.

Our concern there is that some of this money is paid by outside groups wishing to influence Congress. There should be some limit on it.

The House, on the other hand, not only decided to ignore the 12 million unemployed Americans, but decided to try and exploit their anger by seeing that there was not a recorded roll call vote on the pay raise, which was tacked onto the big money bill passed and signed by President Reagan.

In defense of the House, members have not had a pay increase since 1979 and a 15 percent increase is not out of line, but we don't like the way they went about it. If Representatives felt they were justified in seeking a pay increase, they should have stood up to be counted.

Overly rigid law still haunts us

With less industrial activity occurring here, one might conclude that the air we breathe is becoming more tolerable. Not so, says the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which has named Madison County as one of 472 counties in 44 states failing to comply with desired standards.

Illinois officials say only 13 of the 102 counties in this state, not 20, ought to be listed; information in the federal report is outdated, they say.

But Madison and St. Clair counties are on both the federal and state EPA lists for failing to adequately reduce particulates—tiny dust or debris particles that cause "smog."

The federal Clean Air Act requires all of the nation's 3,000 counties to establish and enforce tight controls on industrial air pollution by Friday. Areas that fail to do so could lose federal highway money as well as grants for cleaning up sewage and the air. A new Mississippi River bridge at Alton is one of the pending projects which could be affected.

The U.S. EPA also could impose a construction ban on facilities that emit certain kinds of air pollutants. Categories studied by Uncle Sam include particulates, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, ozone and nitrogen dioxide.

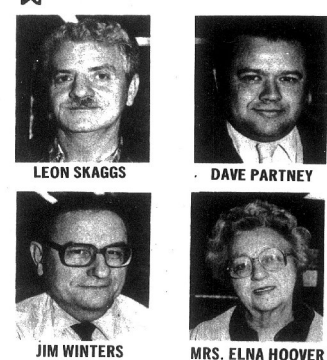

One of the disappointing elements of potential federal crackdowns is the continued emphasis on auto exhaust testing, even though such programs have been found to be costly, ineffective, counterproductive and even corrupt in many cities.

Sanctions for non-compliance will not be immediate, and we earnestly encourage federal legislators to take a new look at unwise, overly rigid specifications and "solutions" in the air law.

Rigidity makes no sense at all where it blocks new air improvement projects and where it delays highway projects that can ease traffic congestion and related emissions. Even the federal EPA administrator views some of the sanctions as "an unhealthy, regressive step" ill-tuned to the supposed goal of making the air cleaner and healthier.

Cooperation the key to yule mail delivery

To the Editor:

With the Christmas mailing season now behind us, the entire staff of the Granite City Post Office wishes to express our appreciation for the cooperation we received from the Press-Record in helping us urge the public to shop and mail early during the past two months.

Thanks to the efforts of the Press-Record and the excellent cooperation of our residents, we were able to handle the holiday mail volume without any difficulty.

Allow me to also mention that much of our success was due to the dedication of our postal employees, who worked long hours to make sure all mail was delivered in time for Christmas.

Again, thank you for your help in making this holiday season one of the most successful and memorable ever for the Granite City Post Office.

Gratified to see people helping others during holidays

To the Editor:

With the economic situation the way it is, it was most gratifying to see the various groups in the area helping the needy during Christmas.

The Salvation Army, the Madison Junior Service Club and the Madison City Organization should be praised for their efforts to help citizens of Madison.

As a member of one of these organizations, I am proud that, together, we made a significant contribution. We look forward to future endeavors when our city is in need, and we know that the citizens of Madison will support us during these troubled times.

Jobless benefits top pay of some

To the Editor:

Recently I suggested that high unemployment and welfare benefits have made joblessness an increasingly attractive alternative for many Americans.

This argument prompted many reactions, most of them favorable. But I was roundly criticized in some quarters for claiming, according to the critics, that we have high unemployment today because the unemployed simply prefer not to work.

First, let's be clear about what I did and did not say. I did not say that the vast majority of jobless Americans have chosen this condition.

There is no question that most desperately want to work.

I did say, however, that double-digit unemployment is caused by many factors, including the recession; excessive taxes and regulations that have strangled business activity; unreasonable wage demands which have helped price many of our products out of world markets; and finally, the fact that in recent years we have pushed unemployment and welfare benefit levels so high that joblessness has become a preferable and, in some cases, a more profitable alternative to work.

As evidence of this, consider the example of a typical Florida family of four with a weekly income of $250. I am grateful to the Florida Farm Bureau Federation for providing me with this information.

If the wage earner in this case were laid off from his job, he and his family would receive the following monthly income and benefits:

Unemployment compensation, $337.50

Food stamps, $151.75

Housing and utilities assistance, $335.35

School breakfasts and lunches, $70.40

Energy assistance, $50.00

Total unemployed monthly income, $1,143.

In other words, this worker while unemployed receives a tax free monthly income that is actually greater, six percent greater, than his salary on the job.

Moreover, his jobless income and benefits are tax-free, while the salary is not. This makes the "unemployment premium" that much greater.

In fact, once taxes are taken into account, this $250 per week worker would have to find a job with a weekly gross pay of $312 in order to match in take-home pay what he gets by being unemployed.

In relating this example I am not passing judgment on whether current unemployment benefits are too high or too low in terms of what it takes to provide for a family of four.

But simple common sense about human motivation suggests that a society based on a system of incentives must reward those who work at a higher level than those who don't, regardless of whatever misfortune pushed the latter group into that condition.

Unemployment is a personal tragedy for millions of Americans. But for others it is a matter of choice — and that choice is draining our economy of precious resources that should be in the hands of businesses and consumers so that jobs can be created for all those who do want them.

This is a national tragedy that no one talks about.

Mitchell water rates increase

Customers of the Mitchell Public Water District, 745 East Chain of Rocks Road, received notification this month that bills will increase approximately 15 percent for each household effective Jan. 1, 1983.

In a letter signed by Earl F. Phelps, chairman, he said, "The water district has not increased the water rates since July, 1979, and since that time, Illinois-American Water Co. (which sells water to the Mitchell system) has increased the district's rates by 52 percent. We regret this current rate increase, but, we can no longer continue to absorb the rate increases we have been receiving for the past three and one-half years."

New water rates for those who use up to 2,000 gallons will be $4 per month; 2,100 to 5,000 gallons—$6 per month; 5,100 to 10,000 gallons—$8 per month; 10,100 to 100,000 gallons—$13 per month; over 100,000 gallons—$10 per 100 gallons. The minimum charge will be $4 per month.

Compiled from the pages of the Granite City Press-Record

50 Years Ago

December 27, 1932

Beginning January third the price of the Press-Record will be three cents per copy. Until November, 1930, the price of the Press-Record was three cents. The price was reduced at that time to two cents at the expense of the carriers. Prior to November, 1930, the carriers paid one cent for each copy and sold each copy at three cents. The carrier thus made a profit of two cents on each copy he sold but he delivered copies to subscribers who had paid in advance without any compensation on such copies.

When the reduction in price from three cents to two cents was announced, it may sound odd but the fact is, that the circulation did not increase. One would naturally think that more newspapers would be sold at two cents than at three cents but such did not prove to be the case.

Thousands of fish have died in one section of Horseshoe Lake, apparently from water pollution, during the past week and a half and state biologists are attempting to determine the reason. The section of the lake involved is along Bend Road from the Rod and Gun Club to the west end of the lake. Fish in other areas of the lake have not been affected. Biologists from the state department of conservation are having biopsies performed on water samples and dead fish specimens, according to William Nichols, president of the Horseshoe Lake Landowners Assn., and a report is expected this week. The last time that fish were killed in the lake was in 1951, Nichols said, also caused by pollution of the water.

Recovery dive team elects

Bill Horton was elected captain of the Bubblemasters Underwater Recovery Team (BURT) during the team's annual election meeting in the home of Dee and Mary Adams, 2411 Cardinal Ave.

Other team officers elected for 1983, include: Glen Gates, Ed Duffin and Bud Horstmeier, lieutenants; Paula Weiss, treasurer; and Gina Horstmeier, recording secretary.

Plans for the coming year were discussed and various activities of the past year were reviewed. Among the reports, it was noted that BURT divers assisted in the recovery of an auto and driver from the Mississippi River Thanksgiving night.

Members of the Alton Volunteer Emergency Corps located the vehicle in about 25 feet of water and 50 feet from the shoreline, using magnetic bars.

BURT divers attached cables to the auto to enable its removal from the river. A man inside the vehicle, apparently had died from a heart attack, the local divers were advised.

Team members also were on call throughout the recent flood emergency and responded to several requests for aid.

Refreshments were served by the host couple and the remainder of the evening was spent socially.

Other team members and guests attending were Vicki Horton, Barb Gates, Jerry and Judy Dresch, Paul Foster, Pat Tanner, Bruce and Pat Evans and Marie Godette.

File 4 charges against man, 54

Responding to a call of a man with a gun last week, officers were met at Kate and Edwards Streets by Dorothy Kiselka, 2503 E. 23rd St., who reported having made the call and explained that her father, John Gancheff, 54, of 3108 Edgewood Ave., had allegedly threatened the life of her husband, Gary Kiselka.

Officers halted Gancheff's auto at Kate and East 23rd Streets and alleged a .22-caliber automatic pistol was laying on the front seat of the vehicle. The weapon contained nine live shells in a clip and one round in the chamber.

Also in the auto were two night sticks, a baseball bat and a ballpeen hammer. An open bottle of whiskey also was in the front seat, it was alleged.

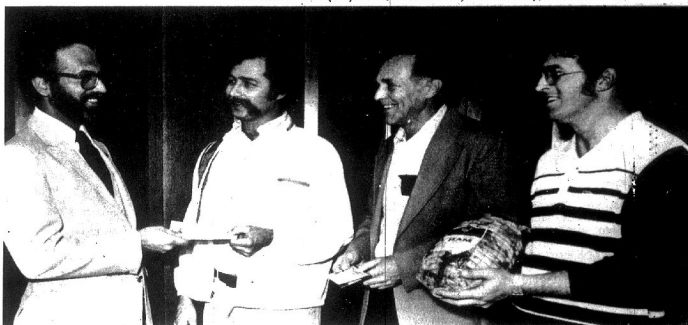

Mrs. Kiselka said Gancheff came to the Kiselka's mobile home and she refused to let him in when he allegedly threatened the life of her husband, who was not at home at the time.

Gancheff reportedly refused to leave, then left for about five minutes and returned. Meanwhile, Mrs. Kiselka placed a television set inside the front door to bar the way.

Her father allegedly threatened to shoot through the door and kept tapping on it with the gun, she alleged.

Officers booked Gancheff on state charges of aggravated assault, criminal trespass to land and unlawful use of a weapon. He also was charged with illegal transportation of alcohol.

Gancheff pleaded innocent in a court appearance and was released on a $20,000 recognizance bond.

for Christmas Contest." Leonard Smith, third from left, of 32 Moorland Drive, Mitchell, receives a $50 savings bond for second place, and Dave Noel, right, of 1811 Spruce St., is presented a ham for third place.

New county phone system to be operational by spring

By JIM SCHUETER
Madison County's new telephone system should be in full operation by April or May, following the county board's approval of the purchase of a new ROLM Mid-West phone system.

The installation of the new system will cost the county $339,689, with $250,000 coming from 1983 federal revenue sharing money allocated for the new system. Other funds will be coming from Manpower and Community Development.

Director of Administration Mary Kane said that if Manpower and Community Development cannot make up the difference, ROLM has indicated it would defer any remaining cost to the next fiscal year.

Mrs. Kane said that the delay in getting the new system hooked up is because of the county, not the phone company. Mrs. Kane said the county must determine which offices will go to the old Sears Building.

The county received the building as a gift this summer.

"The county has to make decisions on many departments," Mrs. Kane said. "An analysis of the space will be needed."

Although the ROLM system is not the least expensive, Mrs. Kane said it is less than the other two systems that have the capability of hooking all of the downtown buildings into a single phone system. The system has other features that two cheaper systems do not have, Mrs. Kane said.

Mrs. Kane also said that the county will save approximately $80,000 a year with the new system. The county's current phone system from Illinois Bell is more than 10 years old.

In other action, the board held over a resolution authorizing the sheriff's department to use $85,000 for the purchase of replacement patrol vehicles.

According to central services committee member Don McLean, Edwardsville, the resolution will be held until committee Chairman S. Harold "Cotton" Roberts, Alton, can look at the proposals.

Roberts is a big supporter of cheaper fuel alternatives, such as portable propane or natural gas tanks and card-operated, county gasoline dispensers. Roberts has been hospitalized until recently.

The board also approved the transfer of $11,000 from the contingency fund to the circuit court to contract a former employee to guard county detention home juveniles while they are at the courthouse.

The resolution, from the finance committee, says that the county will be reimbursed $4,000 from the state. The resolution also says that the county will also save $7,500 in unemployment insurance costs by contracting for services.

At a recent finance committee meeting, Mrs. Kane said the contracted employee will be a recently laid-off county worker.

Chrysler announces a major expansion of St. Louis plant

Good news for Quad-City area auto workers. Gerald Greenwald, vice-chairman of Chrysler Corp., yesterday announced a major production expansion for the St. Louis assembly plant that will move that plant's assembly output, create from 1,400 to 1,700 new jobs, and require a $96 million investment to launch the all-new G-24 sports car and other 1984 models next July.

Greenwald made the announcement at a joint news conference with Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond in the Bel-Air Hilton Hotel.

Approximately one-half of the $96 million investment in St. Louis is for tooling and facility costs to introduce the G-24, our 1984 high-performance sports car, which will have a turbocharged 2.5-liter engine, electronic throttle body fuel injection and a new suspension system," he said.

The rest of the expenditure will be used to upgrade the plant's paint system, retrain plant personnel and introduce other 1984 models.

In addition, the plant will be expanded by 32,400 square feet to handle new parts and components for the G-24.

The two-shift operation will increase the plant's employment from the present 2,500 to as many as 4,300 by the time the plant reaches full production.

When the plant is in full production, we expect the two-shift operation to more than double the daily output from 434 to 940 units. We anticipate the plant will build more than 100,000 G-24 models during the 1984 model year," he said.

The higher employment level, Greenwald pointed out, would raise the plant's present single-shift payroll of $95 million to approximately $134 million on two shifts.

Chrysler's vice-chairman said the company already is well under way with new tooling and other equipment projects for the G-24 at Chrysler stamping, power train and diversified operation plants throughout the country.

"We plan to spend an additional $100 million in these facilities to make the dies, fixtures, and other machinery to support the St. Louis assembly plant before and during the model changeover," he said.

In addition to the G-24, Greenwald said, the St. Louis plant's 1984 production lineup will include a redesigned version of the Chrysler LeBaron and Dodge 400 convertibles, and a complete offering of front-wheel drive, two-door coupes, including the LeBaron and 400, the Dodge Aries and the Plymouth Reliant. All will have front and rear exterior changes and new interior treatments.

The majority of the employees will undergo extensive training before and during the model changeover, so that they will become totally familiar with the plants new production process and variety of new models that will be built there," Greenwald said.

The St. Louis plant is scheduled to shut down for conversion to the 1984 models June 17. The four-week conversion will involve the most extensive changeover undertaken by Chrysler in the U.S. since the company converted all of its domestic plants to front-wheel-drive passenger cars.

Propose standards for McKinley Bridge workers

By VALENTINE EVENDEN

of the Press-Record

Support for the re-enactment of Federal General Revenue Sharing and a preliminary report on proposed work policies for McKinley Bridge personnel were among the items discussed by the Venice City Council at its meeting last night.

Venice aldermen unanimously adopted a resolution requesting support by congressional leaders for re-enactment of the Federal General Revenue Sharing, noting that "the loss of federal assistance will impose certain obligations upon local governments to procure like amounts from local taxes."

The resolution also states the community "depends greatly on the ability to receive funds from Federal General Revenue Sharing" and asks the elected officials to vote for its re-enactment.

"Realizing the full potential of the needed assistance our community must have to be financially sound in the operation of local government."

A similar resolution recently was adopted by the Southwest Illinois Council of Mayors of St. Clair, Madison and Monroe counties, Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols noted.

Mayor Echols gave council members a preview of proposed personnel policies for McKinley Bridge employees. The only employee guidelines previously in existence for bridge workers involved sick leave procedures.

An initial draft of the policies' statement, prepared by Bridge Manager Tom Fields, together with Mayor Echols, was reviewed earlier by bridge employees, who were asked to provide further input. Several recommendations and changes were made at that time, it was learned.

The proposed policies, later referred to the council's Bridge Committee for consideration, involves personnel standards by employees, including punctuality in reporting to work, three shifts and remaining at their post until workers on the next shift arrive; and emphasizes consideration and courtesy to the public.

Accountability of cash receipts, adherence to sick leave policy, as established by the council in May 1979, are included.

Use of the bridge office or toll booth telephones for drivers of disabled vehicles on the bridge and prompt removal of vehicles creating traffic hazards were recommended. A section also prohibited the possession of weapons, drugs and alcohol by anyone in the toll booth plaza.

Punctive action against employees violating rules generally calls for a one-to-three-day suspension without pay to the loss of a job for a second offense, the proposed guidelines state.

Further refinement and modification of the policy statement is expected prior to its presentation and formal adoption later this month. The recommendations were referred to Bridge Committee, headed by Third Ward alderman George Lewis, on a motion by Third Ward Alderman John Ervin.

Deer carcass vanishes

A resident of Tank Town's Lakeview Drive area called the Press-Record Tuesday and described the run-around she had received from various offices while attempting to have a deer carcass and other parts of the dead animal removed from her front yard.

Some time later, the woman noticed the deer carcass had disappeared and, soon after that, a Chouteau Township truck came to the house to pick up the remains. The resident and her husband found the large deer hide, with two legs attached to the carcass, in the front yard. Part of another leg and hoof was near the front porch.

Initially, the homeowner called the county humane officer, who reported his office was unable to pick up the carcass.

She next called Nameoki Township, which declined to help, referring her to an Edwardsville phone number, where the person answering the phone suggested she contact the area game warden and provided a number. No one answered the number when called by the woman, so she later by a Press-Record reporter.

The reporter also called the Edwardsville number and was advised that the area game warden and provided a number. No one answered the number when called by the woman, so she later by a Press-Record reporter.

The reporter also called the Edwardsville number and was advised that the area game warden and provided a number. No one answered the number when called by the woman, so she later by a Press-Record reporter.

provided by Nameoki Township, which turned out to be the Madison County Rabies Control Department.

A spokesman at the office said the department is not equipped to pick up dead animals, neither deer nor dogs, as they do not have the facilities. Again, it was stated the responsibility for disposing of dead animals lies with the township in which the property is located.

"I am so disgusted. It seems like everyone is passing the buck," the woman stated. "I just don't believe it," she added.

Soon after calling the Press-Record, and with great misgivings, the woman and her husband decided they'd better don gloves and old clothes and dispose of the carcass themselves.

They looked in the yard and then all around the property, but the carcass had mysteriously disappeared.

One leg, however, remained near the porch.

A few moments later, a Chouteau Township vehicle drove to the house and the driver said he had come to haul the dead animal away.

The woman described the unexplained disappearance of the carcass and the township employee picked up the last remaining part of the animal and took it away.

"The truck driver told us to call anytime we find a dead animal and they'll take it away," the resident said.

There was no explanation why the township office had declined to help when she first called, the woman said.

THREE ANIMALS FOUND DEAD

Three dogs were found dead on the north side of Madison Metal Decorating Co., on Caine Drive in Madison at 6:05 a.m. Monday by an employee of the company.

The animals apparently died from some type of head wounds, but were not skinned, as were the previous animals found in Madison, according to the official report.

News notes

Illinois opened a second "death row" Tuesday at Pontiac by sentencing three convicted killers from Menard prison at Chester. Forty-nine men await execution in this state, compared to 37 a year ago. Death sentences for four have been affirmed by the Illinois Supreme Court. Capital executions could be carried out in 1983 if further appeals fail. No one has been put to death by this state since 1962; those now on death row were sentenced under a revised capital law that took effect in 1977.

State Farm Insurance Co., the nation's largest auto insurer, will raise its car rates in Illinois an average of 8.6 percent Jan. 20.

The Social Security rate will not rise in 1983 but the wage base subject to the tax will increase from $32,400 to $35,700.

Bethlehem Steel will end most of its steelmaking at Lackawanna, N.Y., in 1983 and reorganize operations at two other plants. About 10,000 jobs will end. The firm lost more than $1 billion in 1982.

Cuts in Illinois medical aid for the poor will affect all aspects of the program. As many as 100,000 working poor may be cut from eligibility for state help in the remainder of the current year, ending June 30.

Targeted for reductions are dental services, some medicines, and fees paid to hospitals, doctors and other health care providers.

Michael J. Shambro, 34, Ponton Beach, convicted as a drug dealer, has been sentenced to six years in prison for selling morphine in March to an undercover narcotics agent. He was arrested by police along with dozens of other suspects in July.

FREE COFFEE FOR NEW YEAR DRINKERS

The 30 Pantera's Pizza restaurants in the bi-state area will be offering free coffee on New Year's Eve from 5 p.m. until closing hours, especially for people who have worked too much holiday cheer.

Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler said a federal emergency official would survey the site of four recent sewer breaks here in the city's effort to qualify for a $411,000 grant needed to repair the breaks.

The breaks began after heavy rains fell twice this month. The first at the intersection of Madison and Lincoln Streets Mark Warfield said the latest breaks occurred at 23rd Street and Lincoln Avenue. The second break was reported in the 2800 block of Lincoln Avenue and on Terrace Lane and Faith Avenue.

Due to lack of funds, the breaks are being bypassed, rather than being repaired.

$2.7 million gone, threats are alleged

Opposing any bond reduction for Thomas R. Brimberry, a Securities and Exchange Commission investigator, testified yesterday that $2,700,000 never has been accounted for by the former senior vice-president in charge of Stix & Co. operations.

He also alleged that the ex-Granite City man threatened two witnesses in the case and once held a witness at gunpoint for two hours in his home here.

The hearing on a $100,000 cash bail requirement took place in St. Louis. A hearing on an identical bond is set for today in East St. Louis.

Called the key figure in the stock and brokerage collapse, he is in custody on 11 federal charges filed in Missouri and three federal warrants issued in Illinois. He is accused of lying to grand jurors and SEC investigators and telling co-defendants to lie and burn records.

John Brissman of the SEC said there is no doubt that Brimberry would not "buy his freedom and flee this court's jurisdiction."

The defendant is at the St. Clair County Jail in Belleville. U.S. Magistrate Robert D. Kingsland will study the bonds, he said.

Brissman said a witness told jurors that, before the Stix collapse in November 1981, Brimberry was "contacting the Internal Revenue Service. Brimberry allegedly had no criminal record and had kept in constant touch with authorities."

The charges relate to events occurred under an agreement in which Brimberry was to provide information and plead guilty to single tax felony. "He did not flee (from Arizona) because he had a sweet deal, but he doesn't have a deal anymore," the investigator testified.

Another witness is said to have been warned of "a blood trail" unless records were destroyed.

One of the witnesses allegedly went to the Brimberry residence at the request of the defendant's wife, Janice, who is said to have voiced fear that her husband would harm her.

Brimberry said that after

Mrs. Brimberry and the witness' wife left, Brimberry held the man at gunpoint and at one time fired two shots into the air, threatening to kill both wives when they returned.

Brimberry is said to have talked to his wife on a citizen band radio and said that, if she failed to return, he would leave the U.S. and go to where he had hidden his money.

The investigator alleged that $10.5 million was taken, including $10 million received personally by Brimberry; of the latter figure, $6.5 million went to two Las Vegas casinos for gambling debts, with other funds going for travel, entertainment and residential costs. Brimberry has not been charged with taking money from brokerage customers' accounts, but court documents say he described how it could be done.

Vanaman said the defendant has been living on $100,000 obtained from selling eight items of expensive equipment that had been bought with stolen money.

Mrs. Janice Brimberry testified the couple and their three children have been living in Arizona. Asked whether he is capable of violence, she paused and then said "yes."

Ronald Kane, prosecutor for the SEC, said he fears for witnesses' safety if Brimberry is released. Gerald Crawford, defense attorney, said his client has no criminal record and has kept in constant touch with authorities.

New tax will expedite Clark Bridge, rail yard relocation

As a result of the highway bill passed by the U.S. House and Senate, Illinois will gain more federal transportation funding than ever.

Under the nickel-a-gallon tax increase package, Illinois will receive an additional $1.2 billion to $1.6 billion in highway, bridge and transit funding over the next four years, Sen. Charles H. Percy is emphasizing.

"It's time our transportation dollars were brought home for the construction and repair of highways and bridges in Illinois," Percy says.

"Now for every dollar of federal highway taxes raised in Illinois, $1.43 will be returned to the state in federal highway improvements."

Of the $1.2 billion to $1.6 billion in additional federal funding for Illinois, $800 million to $1.2 billion will be targeted for highway and bridge construction and repair, and $400 million will be used for transit operations and transit capital improvements.

Transit capital projects ready for immediate implementation include:

—$26 million for Burlington Northern rail terminal construction.

—$10 million for Northwest Suburban Mass Transit District facility construction; and —$500 million dollars for Regional Transit Authority and Chicago Transit Authority rail line rehabilitation and bus facility construction.

Unlike any other state, Illinois will receive special funding of approximately $225 million for the replacement and repair of four Illinois bridges:

—$70 million for the Dan Ryan Bridge on the Dan Ryan Expressway in Chicago between 18th and 26th streets, over the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad, the Chicago River and the Stevenson Expressway.

—$80 million for the MacArthur Bridge over the Mississippi River near Burlington, Iowa, and —A possible $47 million for the LaSalle-Peru Bridge over the Illinois River on U.S. 51.

Illinois is also the only state to receive special funding of $100 million over four years for the completion of usable segments of Illinois' two priority primary routes — U.S. 51 from Rockford to Decatur and the so-called Kansas City-Chicago expressway from Peoria to Quincy.

The state will further receive $200 million over four years for rail-highway crossing projects, including the $60 million Carbondale rail relocation project and continued work on the Madison-St. Clair counties railroad yard reorganization project.

According to the federal government, the highway bill is expected to create from 15,000 to 25,000 jobs in Illinois. It adds five cents a gallon to the federal tax on gasoline.

Role of video games in child development

If your child received a video game for Christmas, it can have an important positive impact on his development and education, said a child psychologist at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

However, if parents do not monitor the amount of time and energy expended on the games, their overuse could hamper healthy growth of the child's sense of identity and self-worth and the ability of the child to communicate and work with others, warned Mary E. Reeves, Ed.D.

Dr. Reeves is associate professor and assistant director of the Office of Institutional Research Planning and Development in the University of Illinois College of Nursing.

"Video games are more than a fad; they are part of the computer revolution, which is the trend of the future in all aspects of society, including schools and business," she said.

"Those growing up today who do not learn something about computers and their usage will fall hopelessly behind."

"Playing video games helps a child somewhat familiar with computer technology so that he is not hesitant or afraid when he sees and must use computers in school."

"In addition, video games develop eye-hand coordination, speed a child's responses and reflexes, improve the sense of timing, and teach the healthiest form of competition — competition with oneself."

"When competing with yourself, you work to improve your own performance and abilities rather than just trying to surpass someone else. In this way, you enhance your self-assurance and feelings of personal worth."

As with other games and activities, though, too much of a good thing can be detrimental. That is why she suggests that parents set "reasonable limits" on the amount of time their children spend "zapping the invaders" or playing other video games.

"A child can try so long and hard to beat the machine that he becomes tense and stressed," she said.

"You can learn eye-hand coordination for only so long. If the child ties up all his interests and energies in the machine, then he has eliminated a critical element in his development — communication and interaction with other people."

"The skills a child learns while playing pave the way for his later success in the world as an adult."

"An important part of that success hinges on the ability of the child to share ideas and cooperate with other individuals.

"Communication has a major role in development of a person's sense of identity and value as an individual. Such development begins at infancy."

"A baby learns to use his hands as he tugs and pulls at his sock until it comes off his foot," she related. "He coos and giggles not only because of what he has accomplished but because he wants others to come and see what he has done."

"The same kind of communication occurs during other activities such as learning how to walk."

"The parent calls, 'Come to Mommy; just two more steps,' and the baby puts his foot forward and laughs, proud of what he is doing."

"There's a tremendous amount of encouragement going on in this learning process. Communication is critical to the child's growing-up experiences."

Dr. Reeves also stressed that children who spend an inordinate amount of time playing video games at arcades or other establishments can waste money that might be better spent elsewhere.

"Just pumping quarters into a machine does not teach the child more constructive uses of money," she said. "The quarter that goes into the machine is gone."

"However, if the same quarter is invested in sports equipment, for example, the child has something he and his friends can play with time and again."

"For parents trying to decide what types of video games would best serve their children, we recommend those that provide several learning experiences at one time."

"A baseball video game has been marketed that not only developed the eye-hand coordination and the timing, but also taught the child something about baseball — how the sport is played and what the roles of the batter, pitcher and other team members are," she said.

"A game like this is much more advantageous than one involving mere button-pressing to eliminate invaders."

"Video and computer games that teach foreign languages and others that help children to learn and spell words in English are also on the market."

Nameoki to accept energy assistance applications

By PAT HAY LUTZ
of the Press-Record

Nameoki Township Supervisor Harry Briggs announced Monday that energy applications will be accepted at the township office starting Tuesday, Jan. 4, at 8:30 a.m. The applications, which allow eligible persons to request monetary assistance for utility bills, will be available at the office until the EOC funds are exhausted.

Those applying for assistance are requested to produce proof of income for the last three months, as well as the hearing bill for the last month.

According to Briggs, the applications will be accepted during office hours, until the township is notified to stop. "We will accept as many applications as we can until the EOC tells us that there are no more funds. We don't have any more money available, we will let everyone know," Briggs said.

Briggs also informed township members that the township has agreed to sponsor a study on the drainage problems in the township. The township can get federal funding for the project. According to Town Board Member Helen Hawkins, many residents in the township are complaining about inadequate drainage and questionable zoning practices which allow the construction of buildings on natural drainage sites. "If someone wants to build on a natural drainage site and they are told by Madison County that they can't do it, they just find another way to get zoning rights. It's all part of a game and Nameoki Township residents are suffering because of it," Mrs. Hawkins said. "Someone needs to see what's being done here and put a stop to it," she added.

Board members also heard about an agreement with the Metro-East Transit District, which provides the township with $16,925 to operate the township's senior citizen van. According to Supervisor Briggs, the money is a "windfall" and comes as the result of the quarter-cent sales tax, which was intended for use by Bi-State. "We received this grant because the tax brought in more money than was expected," Briggs said.

Briggs indicated that, although he had submitted a budget request for $23,000, he was happy to have the lesser amount. "We have previously used revenue sharing money to operate the van. This grant frees up that money for other things," he said.

Briggs reported that 68 Christmas baskets containing turkeys, canned goods, vegetables and assorted staples were distributed by township officials to the needy, but he was aware of many requests for more. "We spent approximately $1,000 on the baskets and we just didn't have money for any more," he said. "I wish that we could have handed out more, but it was impossible," he added.

Board members also approved the holiday schedule for 1983 and indicated that the office would not be open on Wednesday, Feb. 11 (Martin Luther King's birthday), Feb. 21 (Washington's birthday), April 1 (Easter), May 30 (Memorial Day), July 4 (Independence Day), Sept. 5 (Labor Day), Oct. 10 (Columbus Day), Nov. 11 (Veteran's Day), Nov. 24 and 25 (Thanksgiving), Dec. 26 (Christmas), and Dec. 30 (New Year's Eve).

Resume farm income statements

U.S. Senator Alan J. Dixon has succeeded in his efforts to require the USDA to disseminate information on net farm income on a regular basis.

Dixon proposed the requirement as an amendment to the Agriculture Appropriations bill, which the president signed into law this week.

Since the 1940's the Department of Agriculture has made available, on a routine basis, an estimate of net farm income to the public. Each USDA adopted a policy of embargoing the release of information on farm income. The action raised fears, Sen. Dixon said, that the income outlook was so bad that the Department was reluctant to give an estimate.

Dixon held hearings in the Agriculture Committee on the policy change, and later offered the amendment, which required the USDA to make available their estimate of net farm income on a quarterly basis.

"The passage of this legislation is a very important achievement. It reinstates a previous schedule for release of farm income forecasts, and ensures that farmers, agribusiness and the Congress will be able to make informed contributions in the formation of national farm policy," Sen. Dixon said.

Cahokia infant needs transplant

The apparently successful operation that 1-year old Jamie Fiske of Bridgewater, Mass. underwent for a liver transplant lends hope to the family of 6-month old Amy Lynn Hardin of Cahokia who suffers from the same illness and will have to have a liver transplant to survive.

After learning about the liver transplant surgery for the Fiske child, Robin and David Hardin contacted their doctors in St. Louis, who had not recommended a transplant, because such transplants on children are experimental, they said.

The tiny girl suffers from biliary atresia, the same rare liver condition that threatened Jamie Fiske's life. According to medical sources, the body's bile, which helps to digest food, is draining directly into her liver, instead of into her gall bladder. Her liver has been damaged beyond repair, the doctors at St. Louis Children's Hospital said.

Amy has undergone two operations which were not successful and was treated at the Minnesota University Hospital just before Christmas, but doctors have said she may not live beyond her first birthday without a liver transplant.

With the great emotional strain relative to the life of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin also must face the financial problem of the life-saving surgery.

The family must have at least $250,000 up-front before doctors and hospital administrators will talk about a transplant. Then there is the difficulty in finding a donor of Amy's size and tissue type, if she is deemed a suitable candidate.

A trust fund was established Nov. 20 at the Dupu State Savings Bank, Dupu, Ill., for Amy Lynn Hardin for possible liver transplant, existing hospital and medical bills and future bills concerning a liver transplant.

If, for some reason, the funds are not used for this reason, the remaining funds will go to Pittsburgh Children's Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa., for anything concerning liver transplant, the bank officers explained.

Gypsy moth vs. forests

The gypsy moth is called one of the great new plagues of modern times. Its larvae attack and defoliate huge tracts of deciduous forests in the northeastern U.S. and Canada. And it's spreading.

Human attempts to control the pest, however, have been colored by fear and political pressures, says an Illinois forest entomologist.

Barbara Weber, of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's U.S. Forest Service laboratory in Fond du Lac, also an adjunct assistant professor of forestry in the SIUC School of Agriculture, notes that mass chemical sprayings to control the gypsy moth may ignore some actual benefits of the insect's damage and threaten the environment with long-term damage.

"The gypsy moth is a messy insect and there are great political pressures in some areas to stop what looks like devastation of a forest," she relates.

"It sometimes isn't recognized that the moths often kill trees in poor condition, trees that would have died anyway. In some instances, these dead trees benefit wildlife that can nest in them."

The gypsy moth — as do many defoliators — also speeds up the rate of nutrient recycling in a forest through its droppings. It also accelerates the natural process of forest succession.

"Gypsy moths are a threat mostly to oak forests. The moth steers clear of many other types of trees," she says.

"I advocate an integrated pest management system for controlling gypsy moths. Such a system would combine biological, cultural and other factors in a widespread war against the moth."

"For instance, switching the moth's preferences from oak and maple to other species of trees could help control the spread of the moth. Viral diseases and predators also could be encouraged."

"Integrated pest management systems are coming in to use on many smaller, well-managed plots, such as those of the valuable black walnut. But much research is needed to refine our knowledge of how insects interact with forest tree species."

It was alleged Dixon pushed Mrs. Dixon to the ground and struck Miss James in the head with his fist.

Following his arrest, Dixon posted a $100 cash bond and was released.

Trojans overcome 21 point deficit; edge Flyers

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

CENTRALIA — In what sent Centralia Tournament record keepers to their books to see if such feat had ever been accomplished in the 40 years of the tournament, Madison overcame a 21-point third quarter deficit to knock off favored East St. Louis Senior 68-64 Tuesday afternoon in second round action of the Centralia Basketball Tournament.

The victory was Madison's second of the tournament. Monday in opening round action, the Trojans defeated Louisville Southern 69-51. Tuesday's victory lifts Madison to the semifinal match against Benton scheduled for 1:15 p.m. Wednesday.

In other tournament action, Granite City South lost to host Centralia 70-54 in the opening round and later fell to Union County Kentucky 72-51 in the consolation bracket.

Bellefonte East annihilated Salem 78-47 in the first round of the tournament, but the Maroons lost to a solid Mt. Vernon team 61-60 in overtime of quarterfinal action.

With just 4:01 remaining in the third quarter of the Madison game Tuesday, the Flyer's Jeff Anthony sank a 9-foot jumper to move East St. Louis ahead 52-31.

With an established 21 point lead, nobody, not even Las Vegas oddsmakers, would have given the Trojans a chance to comeback at that point. A Flyer victory seemed eminent.

Nobody believed it could happen. Nobody believed it would happen.

Nobody — Nobody but the Trojans and their coaching staff. And certainly not Flyer coach Coy A. Nunn. After the game he was lost for words. He muttered "unbelievable" several times.

But at 2:45 p.m. Tuesday, after it was all over, the Trojans made believers out of the 3,500 spectators that crowded Centralia's Trout Gymnasium.

The Trojans not only made a game out of an apparent Flyer blowout, but in doing so won the hearts of most of those spectators as well.

By the game's nearly everyone in the gymnasium was standing, cheering for resurging Trojans. It was a dramatic comeback as yet witnessed during the tournament.

By far, Madison put together its best second half of basketball of the season as they exploded for 33 points while holding the Flyers to 27.

Madison
Trojans

Actually, from the four minute mark of the third quarter when the Trojans were down by 21 to the end of the game when the Trojans played their best, Madison outscored East St. Louis 37-12.

By the end of the third quarter, Madison erased part of the Flyers lead, but were still down by 14, 58-44.

It took Madison six and a half minutes of the fourth quarter before John Hughes tied the game at 62 with a layup.

With the support of what had been a non partisan crowd Madison slowly chipped away at the Flyer lead.

Madison's Michael Young was the first to score in the fourth quarter as he hit two free throws to move the Trojans within 12 points.

Leroy Pryor, who was the hottest player on either team late in the game, sank an 18 footer to cut the Flyer lead to 10.

The Trojan's Terry Hamilton moved the Trojans to within eight with a flashy reverse layup with 6:32 remaining.

Young then responded to move the Trojans to within six as he tipped in a Keith Wyatt rebound.

Following a pair of free throws by Fred Taylor, Madison once again whittled away at the Flyer lead.

With 4:20 remaining, Wyatt moved the Trojans to within six again by sinking a baseline jumper.

Pryor followed by banging in a looping jumper from the corner to move the Trojans to within four before the Flyers' Kevin Mosby moved East St. Louis back up by six.

Pryor closed the gap to four again as he followed up with Hamilton's shot to make the score 62-58. The 5-foot-10 senior then responded 30 seconds later with a pair of free throws to pull the Trojans to within two points.

East St. Louis attempted to stall, and did so for 90 seconds before Hughes stole a pass intended for Taylor. Hughes' shot tied the game at 62.

From that point, it was Madison's ball game. East St. Louis never led again.

Pryor moved Madison on top 64-62 with a layup. Hughes hit both ends of a one and one free throw to give the Trojans a four point lead at 66-62.

Following an East St. Louis layup, Victor Valentine hit two free throws to preserve Madison's four point lead for the victory.

Needless to say, Madison coach Larry Graham was happy with his team's performance.

"I'm real happy with the way they played this afternoon, and in particular the second half. We kept our poise and didn't give up," Graham said. "We went after their big man in the third quarter. We forced them into a different game," he said.

Graham said his team was intimidated early in the game, but when Madison relaxed they were able to come back.

Nunn assessed the game differently. "It was unbelievable. My kids stopped playing," Nunn said. "They relaxed too much. When you blow that kind of lead a loss isn't surprising. I know coach Graham is duly surprised."

The loss drops the Flyers' record to 5-4. The victory was Madison's seventh consecutive. They're 7-1.

Venice downs Chester, Marissa in opening rounds

By ROGER KRAMER
of the Press-Record

FREEBURG — Venice basketball coach Ken Perkins thinks that there is a difference between being undefeated and being awesome.

Although Venice increased its record to 8-0 during its first two games in the Freeburg Holiday Tournament, the Red Devils were far from being awesome in the two games.

Venice, the top seed in the tournament, found 16th seeded Chester as difficult as any of the other teams in the tournament. Venice edged Chester 54-50 Monday in a first round game.

The Red Devils came back Tuesday and found Marissa to be difficult too. Venice needed last minute heroics from Terron Ware to defeat the Meteors 63-60 in a championship quarterfinal game.

In other championship quarterfinal games, Waterloo Gibault defeated Gillespie 66-53, New Athens defeated Piasa Southwestern 64-58 and Freeburg beat Metro-East Lutheran 76-53.

Venice meets Freeburg tonight (Wednesday) in a semi-final game at 8:30 p.m. Gibault plays New Athens at 7 p.m. Metro-East plays Marissa at 4 p.m. in a fifth place semi-final game.

(See related story for more details.) "People expect us to run up and down the court all night, and they're upset if we don't," Perkins said. "We can't do that during the whole game because we're not big enough to do it."

"Everyone expects us to go make the big plays all the time. I've been telling people all year that we're a good team but not an awesome one, but a lot of people don't believe it. This (Monday's game) proves it," Perkins said.

Venice
Red Devils

VENICE 63,
MARISSA 60

Perkins sighed with relief as soon as the final buzzer sounded in Tuesday's quarterfinal game. He had a very good reason: Venice needed the full 32 minutes to defeat the Meteors.

For the last four minutes of the third quarter and the whole fourth quarter, the Red Devils and the Meteors traded the lead five times. Venice needed the final minute of the game to, sew everything up.

Venice, ahead 58-57 with three minutes left, put in a delay game to open the Marissa defense for a back door pass, but an errant shot with 1:52 gave the ball back to Marissa. Forty seconds later, Rodney Rodgers scored to put Marissa ahead 59-58.

However, Ware proved to be the hero in the final minute of the game. Ware scored with 47 seconds left to put Venice ahead again. He made the first free throw in a one-and-one situation but missed the second. Venice led 61-60.

Venice's Keith Marchbanks fouled Rodgers with 28 seconds left, and Rodgers was up at the line for two. Rodgers missed the first one but made the second one to cut Venice's lead to one.

With 21 seconds to go, Eddie Salmond and Rodgers tied up for a jump ball. Marissa won the jump, but seconds later, Venice knocked the ball away from the Meteors. Eventually, Ware got possession of the ball and was immediately fouled.

Ware sank both free throws to clinch the game.

"Our effort was a 1,000 percent improvement from Monday," Perkins said.

Venice was 10 for 12 at the free throw line in the second half, and was 13 of 18 for the game.

"Salmond, (Micah) Wiley and Ware were as cool as ice on the free throw line, and they made some important free throws for us," Perkins said.

VENICE 54,
CHESTER 50

Although Chester was 0-7 going into the tournament, the Yellow Jackets came into the tournament with upset on their minds. They almost pulled off the upset.

Chester made 33 percent of its field goal attempts and controlled the defensive boards. Most of all Chester didn't quit.

Venice led 50-40 with 3:30 left in the game, but three straight turnovers helped Chester move to within two, 50-48, before Bobby Ervin and Salmond made two free throws each to produce the final margin.

"This was the closest we've come all year," Chester coach John Butler said.

"This was definitely our best game of the year. If we could have had a couple of breaks, we could have won this game."

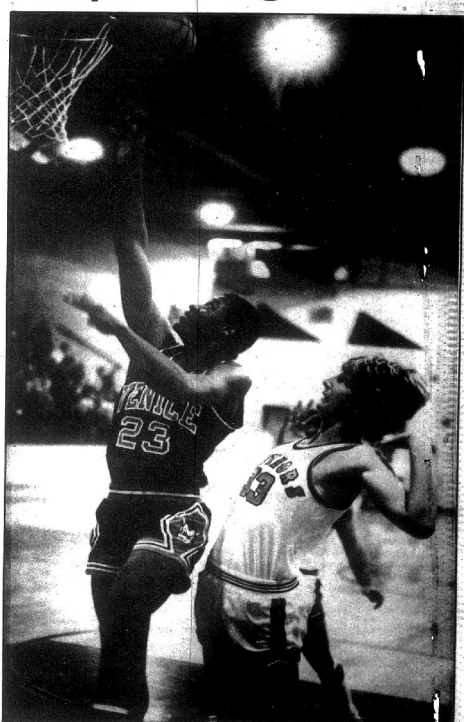

On the other hand, Perkins talked to his players for 30 minutes after the game. "We're expecting everyone to lay down and die for us. They (Chester) played well, but if we would have played a good game and they would have an excellent game like they did tonight, we would have beaten them fairly easily," he said.

Salmond led Venice with 16 points, and William Watts added 14 points. Ron Burke led Chester with 20 points.

The third place game is at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Venice defeated Marissa 63-60 Tuesday to advance to the semi-finals. Metro-East Lutheran, which lost to Freeburg 76-53 Tuesday, will play Marissa at 5:30 p.m. in the fifth place semi-finals. If the Knights win, they will play either Gillespie or Piasa Southwestern in the fifth place game Thursday at 4 p.m.

Sports of all Sorts

He may have been dizzy, but he loved corn...

By AL BARNES
For the Press-Record

I don't know why it was, but until recent years, baseball had more than its share of colorful players, men whose antics both on and off the field captivated the hearts and minds of most fans.

With me, it was a toss-up between Babe Ruth and Jerome (Dizzy) Dean.

Both were, you may not have known, were outstanding pitchers. Ruth with the old Boston Red Sox and Dean, of course, with the St. Louis Cardinals and with the Chicago Cubs.

And, while Babe switched over completely to hitting around 1920 when the New York Yankees began building their baseball dynasty, Old Diz remained true to his first love, mowing down batters with his blazing righthand pitches. However, and you can look it up, Dizzy Dean could hit that old ball.

I don't think either Babe or Dizzy ever grew up.

One of the most human stories I knew about Dizzy Dean took place one Sunday afternoon at the old Sportsman Park in north St. Louis at the tailend of the Browns' stay in St. Louis. The colorful Bill Veeck, last owner of the Browns, started serving hot meals to the sports reporters between the games of Sunday twilight.

On this Sunday, the chief item on the menu was roasted corn. And, old Dizzy dearly loved roasted ears of corn. So, I wasn't surprised that at the end of his three-inning stint of broadcasting the Browns game, he came up from the radio booth and set down beside me. I could tell something was on his mind. Finally, he blurted out: "Hey, Barnes, you got to help me. Patricia (his dear wife) has me on a diet and I can't have any corn, she says. How can I get her out of the press box long enough for me to eat my fill of corn?"

I said, "let me think." Soon, it came to me. "Diz, why don't you go down to the press pass gate and have them telephone up that a couple from down home in Mississippi are down there and want to talk to her. That should give you, the way you eat, plenty of time to put away those roasting ears."

"Do you really think it will work," said Diz.

Without waiting for my reply, he said, "thanks, I'll try it."

Within moments, over the PA system came the message: "Mrs. Dean is wanted down at the press pass gate."

I must add that Old Diz didn't take any chance on the elevator coming back too soon. He tipped the colored boy $5 to get lost, which gave him plenty of time.

However, I must report that, when Mrs. Dean found that there wasn't anyone at the gate, she knew instantly that her boy husband was behind it.

I was one of many that she accused of helping Diz in some prank, but I can't say if he ever figured out that it was his love for roasting corn that was the reason for her wasted trip down to the press pass gate back there around 1952.

Lake Geneva ski vacation still has vacancies

The Granite City Park District will sponsor the first of two ski trips on Jan. 14, 15 and 16, 1983 to Lake Geneva, Wisc. The reason for the early announcement is that in the past, several people purchased reservations as Christmas presents.

The group will leave the Wilson Park Ice Rink at 8 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 14 and stay at the Hilton Inn of Lake Geneva that evening and Saturday evening. The hotel is located on Lake Geneva and offers a restaurant, lounge, whirlpool, sauna and indoor pool.

On Saturday the group will be bused to the Majestic Ski Area on the South shore of Lake Geneva and spend the day on the slopes or at the lodge.

The bus will return to Wilson Park at approximately 11:30 p.m. on Sunday.

If there are four persons per room, the cost will be $74.50 per person; for three it will be $78.16 per person; two to a room will be $85.50 per person and a single room will be $107.50. Meals are not included in these prices.

For more information call John Lakin at the Wilson Park Office, 877-3059.

Cougar grapplers start season strong

EDWARDSVILLE — Off to exactly the kind of start head coach Larry Kistoff had hoped for, the wrestling Cougars of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will now take some time off to enjoy the holiday before returning to action Dec. 29 for the most celebrated mid-season wrestling tournament in the country, the Midlands in Evanston.

The Cougars, who will enter All-Americans Don Stevens, Al Sears, Joe Glauder and Booker Bengford, as well as Howard Leggett, Maurice Brown, Steve Sears and Alan Grammer, in the Midlands Tournament, head into the holiday break with a 5-1-1 dual meet record.

The Cougars opened the dual meet season by handing Big 10 Conference power Purdue University a 29-15 setback. From the Big 10 to the Big 8 Conference, the Cougars again demonstrated why they are among the best of the NCAA-II by defeating the powerful Tigers of the University of Missouri, 22-18. The University of Illinois was the next NCAA Division I team to fall to SIUE as the Cougars pounded the Fighting Illini, 30-11.

Last weekend, at the Huskie Dual Tournament in DeKalb, the Cougars soundly defeated Chicago State University, 36-9, suffered their first loss of the season to Louisiana State University, 23-8, tied Kent State University, 22-25, and defeated Western Illinois University, 38-4.

Individually, Cougars' 190-pound All-American Joe Glauder has yet to be defeated in a dual match, winning two by pins. Heavyweight All-American Al Sears, who last year set an SIUE record with 24 pins, has a 4-1-1 dual meet record and has won all four matches by pins. At 167 pounds, Lewis Reed has also jumped off to a quick start this season, winning five of seven dual matches.

Herzog named Sporting News' Man-of-the-Year

ST. LOUIS, December 27, 1982 — Whitey Herzog, manager of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, has been named the 1982 Man of the Year by The Sporting News, the St. Louis-based national sports weekly.

The announcement was made in St. Louis by Dick Kaegel, editor of the Sporting News. The Man of the Year Award was established in 1968 to honor each year's top sports figures. Herzog was selected for the award by the editors of The Sporting News.

In honor of his being named The Sporting News Man of the Year, Herzog will receive an 18-inch Waterford Trophy, a glittering hand-cut creation of the renowned Waterford Crystal Ltd. of Ireland. The trophy has been valued at $15,000.

Since he took over the reins of the Cardinals in June of 1980, Herzog reconstructed the team in two winters of furious trading activity. In virtually no time, a sluggish fourth-place team was a dynamic world champion playing in the image of its manager.

"The thing I like about Whitey Herzog," said Jack McKeon, a frequent trading partner of Herzog as the San Diego Padres general manager, "is that he tells you exactly how he feels about every situation. No baloney."

Cardinal players unfailingly commended Herzog for his structuring of the club and his work in the dugout. "Why we won it all time," said first baseman Keith Hernandez, "He's (Herzog) a winner. He knows how to get the most out of his athletes. The things he's done the last few years, a blind man could see."

Previous winners of The Sporting News Man of the Year Award are: Wayne Gretzky (1981); George Brett (1980); Willie Stargell (1979); Ron Glady (1978); Steve Cauten (1977); Larry O'Brien (1976); Archie Griffin (1975); Lou Brock (1974); O. J. Simpson (1973); Charlie Finley (1972); Lee Trevino (1971); John Wooden (1970); Tom Seaver (1969); and Denny McLain (1968).

Church Women open new year of events

The Quad-City Church Women United will open its 1983 season at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 11, at the Namur United Methodist Presbyterian Church, 1700 Pontoon Road, with its annual business meeting.

Also featured at the session will be installation of officers and "kick-off" for the Fund for the Fifth Decade campaign.

Each one attending is to bring a "finger food" to share with the group.

President, Nona Corzilius said the Fund for the Fifth Decade is Church Women United's first capital campaign in its history. The fund is needed to energize and move the organization's mission forward into the 80's.

"We have common goals that give us a sense of direction and have program priorities that lift up the critical issues we must address in our fifth decade. Now we need dollars to more effectively act upon these priorities, particularly the issues of the People's Platform: education, employment, environment, family stability, health, housing, human rights, hunger, justice and peace," the president added.

The fund will enable the movement in its parts and as a whole, to grow in response to human needs and social realities, according to the announcement.

The national goal is to reach $4 million, state goal is $275,500 and the Quad-City area goal is set at $3,600.

Forty-five percent of the $4 million received will be used to fund the future growth of Church Women United through allocation to the Fund for the Future, a special endowment fund designed to provide a secure financial base for the movement.

Thirty percent of funds raised by local and state units may be kept to implement the goals of the organization through existing and or new programs, the president explained.

There will be five percent allocated by National CWU for emerging opportunities defined as unexpected, unbudgeted items which occur and require immediate attention not limited to program or provision of services.

A 10 percent figure is designed for developing skills in resource development and communications, and providing on-going training for CWU leadership after the fund drive, and the final 10 percent will be set aside for developing, producing, and distributing materials relative to the fund drive.

The president said, "the Fund for the Fifth Decade will enable Church Women United to respond to new challenges for action and service ever present to ecumenical women in the eighties."

Another event planned is a "Share Your Talent" auction scheduled for Friday, Feb. 18, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Niedringhaus United Methodist Church, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue.

Those attending are to provide items for the auction, time for domestic chores or decorate cakes that could be auctioned for delivery at a later date.

An ongoing program, Friends in Learning which is under the direction of Mrs. Dolores Vogler is to resume its work with children at Webster School following the Christmas vacation. It was announced. Volunteers for the project are to call Mrs. Vogler at 876-1520.

Carolers to aid childrens group

Richard "Dick" Oliver of Granite City, is on the executive committee of the association and Dr. William H. Danforth is chairman of the committee.

Anyone interested in a fun project to help children for next year are advised to contact Oliver at 877-2741 for information and carol pamphlets.

History of bald eagle is meeting topic

The Drusilla Andrews Chapter of the DAR held its December meeting at Burns Cafeteria with Mrs. Barbara Williams leading the group in the opening ceremonies and Mrs. Margaret Bell reading the President General's message. Mrs. Florence Simpson presented several items on National Defense.

A letter was read from the librarian at the Kate Duncan Smith School in Grant, Ala., thanking Miss Nellie Hart for sending the library a subscription to National Geographic World.

Miss Mildred McCormick presented some statistics on home safety stating that 40 percent of all accidental injuries and 25 percent of the accidental deaths occur in the home. She stressed that handrails of all stairways should be kept in good condition and that one should not overburden oneself with large packages.

Alternates were elected to represent the chapter at the state conference in Peoria and the National Continental Congress in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Williams will be the voting representative to the state conference with Mrs. Emma Schoen and Mrs. Janet Wilson as the alternates. For the Continental Congress, alternates Mrs. Janet Wilson and Mrs. Nancy Emahiser will cast the necessary votes.

It was announced that the Good Citizens have been selected by the local high schools and will be honored at a tea in February.

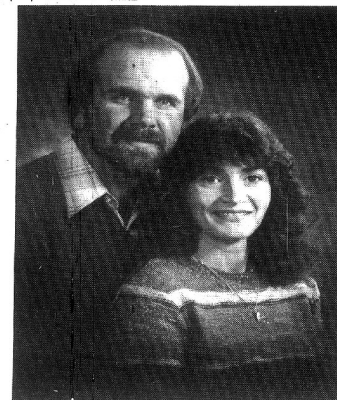

Mr. Linda Koenig presented the afternoon's program on the bald eagle and its history with the great seal of the United States. She stated that it took six years to design the seal, with the final one being a composite of three different designs.

The bald eagle was chosen because it lives only on the American continent, she added.

On the seal the eagle's talons are clutching the arrows of war and olive branches of peace. The bald eagle is minuscule because it has a white head, not a bald one, the speaker explained.

The bald eagle is an endangered species and four eagles have been set up in the U.S. The nearest one is the Oak Valley Refuge Area which is near East Moline. It was established in 1977 and at present contains from 40 to 60 nesting eagles as permanent residents, with many others using the refuge as transient guests, Mrs. Koenig said.

Other members present were Misses Ella Ray Smith, Eva Renfro, Mae McCormick, and Mrs. Eva Meier.

How to cope with those holiday bills

By CATHERINE R. MAUCK
Extension Adviser

If your Christmas spirit began to fade as soon as the first holiday bills began rolling in, you may need to take some time out now to look at your budget and decide on a way to make all the payments.

Despite the most earnest plans made before the holidays, bills tend to slip up on just about everybody this time of year. But careful planning now and a good look at your budget may offer some relief to those bill-paying anxieties.

Keeping a sense of perspective is important when looking at such bills and your budget. Your Christmas bills are only one expense you'll have to meet in the next month or months. If you sit down and pay off all your Christmas bills at once, you may not have enough money left to pay all of your other bills.

The best way to begin to decide on your bill-paying strategy is to first determine the total amount of holiday expenses. Then, take a look at your other fixed expenses, such as rent, utilities and transportation. Deduct the amount of fixed expenses from your income to see how much you'll have left for more flexible expenses — such as entertainment — as well as the holiday bills.

The important thing is to try to pay something on each bill. If you can pay them off in full, that's great. But even making a minimum payment indicates to your creditors that you intend to pay them — even if you'll have to do so slowly but surely.

Making at least minimum payments keeps you in good standing with creditors and helps your credit rating.

If, in totaling up your regular expenses and your holiday bills, you find you just can't stretch your budget to cover all, look into ways of shifting your money to meet your most pressing debts first.

Also, see if you can find any way to make large payments on your bills so they'll be paid off sooner and you'll pay less interest. Such opportunities may be more readily available than you think if your employer offers salary advances at no interest or if you have some money in a vacation or major-purchase account.

where it's earning much less interest than what you're paying in interest charges on your holiday bills.

You may want to think about using that money to pay off your bills now and then replacing it through regular deposits later, rather than leaving the funds where they are while struggling to make payments on credit bills.

If you find you must miss a payment, you should talk to the creditor and explain your problem, rather than just hoping nobody will notice if your payment is late.

It's best to talk to the creditor manager at the store or company where you owe money and explain the problem in person. That way, the creditor will know you plan to pay as soon as you can and are not just ducking a payment.

And, you may be able to work out a way to catch up on payments later or to pay a late charge to avoid problems.

JAMES H. BANDY, 7012 West Main Street Belleville, Illinois 62223 618-396-2210 No. 8 33 12 22 30; 16

At party time, what you think may be more intoxicating than what you drink

Drinkers who expect to get high and lose their inhibitions at holiday parties may do so without drinking a drop of alcohol. They may need to believe they are drinking alcohol and expect it to produce these effects, psychological research suggests.

"Whatever a person feels when he or she takes a drink is a combination of physical effects and psychological beliefs about alcohol," says psychologist Barry R. Burkhart, Ph.D., of Auburn University (Auburn, Alabama). "If you take a drink expecting to feel high and silly, you are going to feel that way, even if there is little or no alcohol in your glass."

Dr. Burkhart's research also suggests that society's expectations about drinkers play a critical role in drinking behavior.

Dr. Burkhart gives people a "time out" from society's limits and rules of good behavior. Dr. Burkhart

This allows people to be less inhibited, more hedonistic, and more exhibitionistic than they would ordinarily be, he says; society seems to sanction this loophole in its moral code.

"We have come to expect that people will sometimes do things under the influence of alcohol that they would not do otherwise," he says. "And people may take advantage of this opportunity to act aggressively or sexually in ways that would normally be less acceptable."

"People's expectancy concerning effects they will experience from use of alcohol is a major field of research by psychologists."

Such research has important implications for America's 10 million problem drinkers whose alcohol dependence may be closely related to their alcohol expectancies.

"In addition to the problem drinkers, about two-thirds of Americans may be considered social drinkers who use alcohol more moderately and less frequently than problem drinkers are less affected by its use."

Research suggests that American children and adolescents who have very little or no drinking experience generally do have well-developed expectations about the pleasurable effects of alcohol and its ability to increase power, relieve tension and transform their experiences.

The General Assembly also approved a one-time acceleration of revenues paid to the state by utility companies, totaling about $34 million. However, the legislature declined to approve an increase in the liquor tax that would have increased revenue by $12 million in the current fiscal year.
